Ringette coach charged with sexual assault

- Alleged incidents reported to police by girl's parents on April 10
- Hepburn has been a coach with Ringette Calgary about five years, according to group's president

Members of Calgary's ringette community are reeling after learning a coach in the league has been charged with sexually assaulting a 13-year-old female player.

On April 18, the Calgary Police Service laid charges against Kelsea Joy Hepburn, 22, in relation to two alleged inappropriate incidents said to have occurred earlier this year.

Daren Gerlitz, co-coach of the Calgary Whoa, a U14 AA team, confirmed Hepburn was an assistant coach for the team and said athletes and their families were informed of the situation Monday.

"My reaction? I guess it's tough to put into words," said Gerlitz. "I was taken aback. We hope the best for the family involved and it's just really, really unfortunate."

Gerlitz said he has a daughter on the team and, like the rest of the parents, he's trying to ensure the players have the support they need.

Ringette Calgary president Paul Geddes said all the coaches went through a police screening and Hepburn was not previously known to police.

"The reality is screening can't predict the future so we do have to, again, review our policies and processes," he said. "For us, it's a real shock because ringette is a really small community ... Everyone knows everything so for us, this is a real surprise."

It's greener on this side

With the election less than two weeks away, Elizabeth May was the first federal party leader to make a stop in Calgary yesterday. May, the leader of the Green Party of Canada, said she was surprised she was the first to hit Calgary. "Certainly it's a sign of respect and an appropriate thing for every federal party leader to visit Calgary," said May. "Maybe they will in the next two weeks."

Cops take teens into custody after fight

Two young offenders were taken into custody yesterday afternoon when an altercation near a Forest Lawn high school resulted in about a dozen youth being exposed to pepper spray, according to police.

The incident that occurred near Jack James High School at around 1 p.m. started with a verbal argument between two groups of youths. EMS did go to the scene to treat several kids who were exposed to the pepper spray but none required hospitalization. Some of the kids involved were students at Jack James but classes were unaffected by the incident.

Board votes to close school

Some parents cheered while other jeered last night, as Calgary Board of Education trustees voted to close one school but saved the English program at another.

Roughly 70 students at Sir James Loughheed school will be forced to move as the board voted unanimously in favour of closing the more than 50-year-old school.

Meanwhile, Mayland Heights school was given a shot at boosting enrolment numbers as the board voted to save the kindergarten to Grade 6 English regular program.

► CBE board chair Pat Cochrane warned next year's budget crunch could be even worse without increased funding from the province.

CBE staffing cuts reduced

► Board approves resource allocation plan ► Roughly 200 school-based staff, 172 central service workers still slated to lose jobs

JEREMY NOLAIS
@METRONEWS.CA

Digging even deeper into reserve funds, Calgary Board of Education administrators announced last night they have saved 100 teaching jobs; however, hundreds of positions will still be lost.

The board of trustees voted unanimously last night to support a resource allocation method that projects the loss of roughly 200 school-based staff.

This projection was a slight improvement on a report released little more than 24 hours later that projected as many as 324 jobs were in jeopardy.

CBE chair Pat Cochrane was pleased that more jobs would be saved, but said the real problem lies in overall funding provided by the province.

"Everything we do is creating the things that we need as a province," she said. "So ... disrupting the system and disrupting our focus, it just doesn't make sense to me."

Jenny Regal, executive director with Calgary Public Teachers, said she was "extremely impressed" with administration's efforts, but added that much work remains.

"The long-range problem is still not fixed," she said.

Principals will now determine how to use their staffing funds before a May 3 deadline.

The CBE board of trustees will vote on an official operating budget for the 2011-12 school year in June.

Budget shortfall

The Calgary Board of Education's total budget shortfall is projected to be $61.7 million.

1 Of that, $14.4 million will now be covered through cutbacks to the resource allocation plan.

2 Just four of seven school board trustees actually voted on the resource allocation method. Two cited conflicts of interest and one was not present.

- Questions: 1) What is your full name, age and current occupation? 2) What is your past political experience? 3) What do you think is the biggest issue in your constituency? 4) What are you doing to get more people engaged in the election process?

Election profile: Calgary Centre

► William Hamilton

► Jennifer Pollock

► Lee Richardson

WILLIAM HAMILTON GREEN PARTY

1) William Hamilton. Age 41. Communications consultant.

2) This is my first run a federal politics but I have been a longtime transit advocate.

3) The big issue: It's time to get Ottawa back to the table and get cities to work.

4) I'm using old and new technology to get to voters. I am talking to people on street corners and going to doorsteps but also using Twitter and putting campaign advertising on YouTube.

JENNIFER POLLOCK LIBERAL

1) Jennifer Pollock. Age 55. Lawyer.

2) I was elected three times to the Calgary School Board so I have served seven years as a trustee and two years as chair of the school board. I have also run two times as the Liberal federal candidate.

3) The biggest issue is probably health care though democracy is running a close second.

4) We have about a thousand signs. So creating awareness through traditional ways: signs and door knocking. Social media is also a big part of my campaign and using video. We are putting out 30-second pieces of people talking about politics — not necessarily about their support for my campaign but about politics in general — and trying to increase participation that way.

LEE RICHARDSON CONSERVATIVE

1) Lee Richardson, 63, MP and businessman.

2) First elected to House (Calgary South East) in 1988; was re-elected in 2004 for Calgary South and then in 2006 and 2008 to represent Calgary Centre. Prior to that, was deputy chief of staff in the Prime Minister's Office, and special adviser to the prime minister on Western affairs. From 1979 to 1983, was chief of staff to Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed. Also parliamentary secretary to the ministers of Communications and Transport.

3) The economy and jobs; crime; homelessness and affordable housing. People are also concerned about post-secondary education for their children and making sure our seniors and veterans are looked after. As well, health care is important in Calgary Centre as well as across the country.

4) Relying on tried and true methods such as door-knocking, brochure drops and signs as well as using newer communication tools such as website, emails, Twitter and Facebook. Also work to engage voters and constituents in between elections with regular communications from my office at Parliament and trips back to Calgary almost every weekend.

Robber vaults to top of police priorities

The Canadian Bankers Association is offering up a $10,000 reward in hopes of getting the jump on a fleet-footed robber.

The individual, dubbed the "Vaulteur Bandit" by Ontario police, is seen in two videos released yesterday calmly climbing over the counter of a bank, stealing money and leaving a trail of terrified employees and customers in his wake.

Police believe he climbed over the counter and successfully robbed 10 banks in the Greater Toronto Area last year between February and September and used the same method to make off with cash from four Calgary banks in February. Police have not released the total amount of money stolen.

► At the College of Arms in London, a painter sketches the new coat of arms for Kate Middleton's family.

Security details unveiled

► Massive operation with 5,000 officers assigned for royal wedding
► Teams have been checking wedding route ► Will cost millions in OT

British police have rejected a request by a small band of radical Islamists to stage a protest outside Prince William and Kate Middleton's royal wedding venue April 29, Scotland Yard said yesterday.

Metropolitan Police assistant commissioner Lynne Owens said Muslims Against Crusades would not be allowed to demonstrate outside Westminster Abbey and "ongoing discussions" were underway as to whether the group would be allowed to hold a protest nearby.

Police said they are also negotiating with the far-right English Defence League, which has said it plans to hold a shadow protest if the Muslim group's application was successful.

Police yesterday released some details of their huge security operation for the wedding, saying 5,000 uniformed and undercover officers would be assigned to the event.

The wedding will be attended by a large collection of royals, politicians and VIPs including Queen Elizabeth II and about 50 other heads of state. That poses a severe security challenge, especially since the royal entourage will use a parade route publicly announced several months ahead of time.

Police expect huge crowds to throng the parade route from Westminster Abbey to Buckingham Palace.

Controlling air traffic on job or remote control?

► After many sleep on job, one air traffic controller caught watching film

An air traffic controller has been suspended for watching a movie when he was supposed to be monitoring aircraft, deepening the Federal Aviation Administration's embarrassment following at least five cases of controllers sleeping on the job.

In the latest incident, the controller was watching a movie on a DVD player early Sunday morning while on duty at a regional radar centre in Oberlin, Ohio, near Cleveland that handles high-altitude air traffic, the FAA said in a statement Monday.

The controller's microphone was inadvertently activated, transmitting the audio of the movie — the phone became stuck in the transmit position, preventing him from hearing incoming radio calls or issuing instructions to planes during the incident, the agency said.

The controller was alerted to the mishap when he was contacted by a military pilot.

Besides the controller, the FAA also has suspended a manager at the Oberlin centre. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Inflation spike, interest hike?

► Almost everything cost more last month ► If it's a trend, not a fluke, look for interest rates to follow suit

Canada's annual inflation rate, which had been bucking global trends, leaped to 3.3 per cent, with both the yearly reading and last month's measure rising by 1.1 points.

It was the biggest single-month jump in inflation since the eve of the 2008 recession, and was well above the consensus call for a 0.6 per cent gain.

The Bank of Canada's mandate is to keep inflation within a range of one to three per cent and as close as possible to two per cent. Last month's spike sharply increases prospects that consumers will see higher interest rates in the near future.

The price of commodities, especially oil, was a big part of the inflation surge, but almost everything was costlier compared to February and last year.

Statistics Canada said all eight of the major components it tracks were up, including food, which was 3.3 per cent higher than last year.

The only good news for the central bank is that core inflation, which excludes volatile items such as gasoline, remained well anchored at 1.7 per cent.

The bank gets one more look at inflation before it has to decide about interest rates on May 31. A lot will depend on whether prices, particularly the core that points to future inflation, breaches the two per cent target. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just sayin'

PAUL
CAMPAIGN

It's not hard to make me crazy. All you have to do is promote one of the following Big Lies:

The Holocaust never happened. It's just a way for Israel to justify its existence ... 9-11 was an inside job ... The world is only 6,000 years old and dinosaurs walked claw in hand with Fred Flintstone ... The moon landing never happened. It was filmed on a Hollywood back lot ... Global warming is a hoax perpetrated by scientists who don't want to lose their grants ... Barack Obama wasn't really born in the U.S. He's not an American citizen, so he's not eligible to be president.

To the people reading this column who believe any or all of the above, I have a bridge you might want to buy. It spans some unbelievably cheap land in Florida that is also for sale.

To Donald Trump, who is playing the "Obama is not an American" card to launch his U.S. presidential bid, I say shame on you. I didn't think you could sink much lower than Celebrity Apprentice, but apparently you're just getting warmed up.

So what if every credible news organization has verified that Obama was born in Honolulu, Hawaii, on Aug. 4, 1961. The "birther" conspiracy theorists, a group entirely composed of rednecks from south of the Mason-Dixon Line (and opportunistic Republicans like the Donald) refuse to believe it.

They believe Obama was born in Kenya. Or held dual citizenship — British/Indonesian/Kenyan — whatever.

This even though Obama has produced a birth certificate from a Honolulu hospital, legal in every aspect, documenting his birth. Pshaw, say the birthers. If he was really born in Hawaii, he would be able to produce the long form — by implication, the real thing that can't be forged. But there was no long form in Hawaii. Obama's certificate is the only form, and it goes with a long string of other evidence: For example, birth notices in the local papers from the Hawaii Department of Health.

None of this cuts the mustard with the Donald, who has decided Obama needs to be fired.

And while mainstream Republicans are slowly backing away from Trump and his ridiculous allegations, the latest poll has him No. 2 among Republican hopefuls, below Mitt Romney, but above Mike Huckabee and Sarah Palin.

And he's on a roll, endorsed by Celebrity Apprentice contestant Gary Bussey, who obviously doesn't care the boss is pandering to a blatant lie perpetrated by a bunch of racists who will do anything to get that black guy out of the Oval Office.

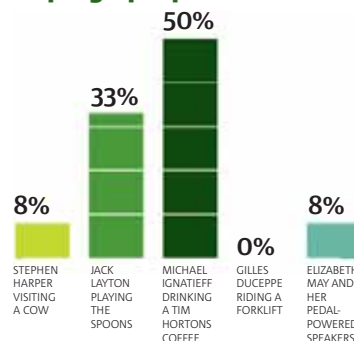

Ignorance is alive and well and living on cable. And it has a really bad comb-over.

Re: Are the Conservatives boycotting democracy?

CALGARY. I was extremely disappointed last night at the candidates' debate held at the University of Calgary for my riding, Calgary-Nosehill. The disappointment did not come from the words I heard from the candidates that were present (Liberal, Green and NDP), but rather from seeing Diane Ablonczy's empty seat.

I was hoping to get to know all the candidates and hear their platforms so I could make an informed vote on May 2. From the reports and articles I have read, it seems that this type of behaviour by Conservative candidates has been nothing but the norm as Deepak Obhrai, Michelle Rempel and Devinder Shory have also been MIA. Where are the Conservative candidates? Do they not care about democracy?

The answer I get from my peers is, "Well, they know they are going to win, so they don't bother showing up." Is this true?

I am just disappointed, that's all.

The U.S. sheriff known for dressing inmates in pink underwear and feeding them green baloney is inviting people to choose the most popular jail booking photos posted on his website.

Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio allows online users to browse through the photos and then vote on their favourites that will be highlighted on a "Mugshot of the

The top picks so far aren't unexpected: They are the most dishevelled, unusual looking people among those booked into an Arizona jail.

Arpaio says he hopes the increased web traffic will highlight the work of his employees.

He also says more crimes may be uncovered if the public can view the photos.

JEFF CHRISTENSEN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Jessie J recorded 600 songs for debut CD ► Talks about school with Adele, writing songs for Miley Cyrus Jessie J spent the last seven years crafting songs for her debut CD. And in that time she came up with a whopping 600 tracks.

"(It) isn't that many 'cause it's less than 100 a year," she said. "(There are) the bad ones that no one will ever hear ... (but) I was young and the thing is, you have to write the bad ones to kind of know when something is good."

Luckily, the 23-year-old found 13 songs good enough to make it on her first album.

Price Tag, which features rapper B.o.B, hit the Top 40 on the Billboard chart last week.

B.o.B is the only artist on your debut. Why him?

If I was a male rapper — which obviously I'm not — (but) if I was, I think I'd be like him, and maybe (be) called like J.o.B. ... I remember he got played the song, he loved it and I did like five plane journeys in like four days and chased him around the U.S. to make sure I was there (for the recording), so it was an experience.

So you went to high school

"You have to write the bad ones to ... know when something is good."

with Adele — how was that?

She was in music and I was in musical theatre. ... We used to jam at lunch time and someone would play guitar and we both would just sing. ... At the time we both didn't know we'd have, like, albums out at the same time. And she's killing it. I'm so proud of her. ... (At school) she was very kind of loud and everyone knew her and she was the girl everyone loved and up for a laugh and you could hear her laugh from a mile down the corridor.

Talk about writing Miley Cyrus' Party In the USA.

That was my first week of writing after I signed to (Universal) Republic (Records), so it was like the first big kind of writing session for my debut album ... and it was one of the first songs we did. And I remember thinking this song is amazing, but I don't know if it's me 110 per cent, you know. You can kind of feel it. It was cool but it wasn't edgy enough.

It was a big deal for Miley though.

There are so many friends of mine that would say, 'I would never, ever, ever listen to Miley Cyrus, like, as Hannah Montana' and it kind of brought her over to another style.

The UK's world wide wedding

► Next Friday's royal wedding to be live streamed on YouTube ► Will feature live blog of wedding events

Palace officials will offer live streaming of the April 29 royal wedding between Prince William and Kate Middleton on the royal channel on YouTube.

The four-hour live Internet coverage will include the ceremony at Westminster Abbey, the procession to Buckingham Palace, and the newlyweds' appearance on the palace balcony for an expected first public kiss.

William's press office will also provide a live blog providing commentary and historical information as well as additional footage.

"The couple wish to strike a balance between a day that is sacred and intimate and a day that will be a cause for global celebration," a St. James' Palace spokesman said yesterday, declining to be identified because of palace policy. "To that end, they want the wedding to be as accessible to as many people as possible and that's why they are communicating in this way."

Officials said the couple have taken a hands-on approach the wedding planning.

"William and Catherine have thoroughly enjoyed the process of creating their special day. They have been responsible for everything from the smallest detail, such as the reception canapes, to the big decisions like the carriages," he added.

Officials said this will be the first time YouTube has run a live blog alongside a live stream for an event.

The circus is a magical blend of drama, comedy, music and wonderful things you can't see at home, unless of course, you live next door to Bozo the Clown.

And that's why filmmakers look to the Big Top for inspiration. It's a naturally cinematic place with themes as flexible as sideshow contortionists who can touch their toes with the top of their heads. For instance, Charlie Chaplin mixed comedy and romance in his classic film The Circus, while Trapeze with Burt Lancaster is a three ring tragedy and Ten Weeks with a Circus is strictly for kids.

This weekend Water for Elephants, an historical drama starring Robert Pattinson and Reese Witherspoon, takes us backstage at the Benzini Brothers Most Spectacular Show on Earth.

The most famous circus movie is probably The Greatest Show on Earth, Cecil B. DeMille's story of love, crime and clowns under the big top. Today the film—which was named one of the 100 Most Amusingly Bad Movies Ever Made by the Golden Raspberry folks—is most notable for making Charlton Heston a star and as the first movie that Steven Spielberg ever saw.

If DeMille's movie is the most famous circus movie, then Freaks is certainly the most notorious. Set in the world of a funfair sideshow it features a cast primarily made up of actual carnival performers — like Elizabeth Green the Stork Woman and Prince Randian a.k.a. the Human Torso — to tell the story of a beautiful trapeze artist who agrees to marry a deformed sideshow performer for his money.

And speaking of sideshow attractions; these days Benicio Del Toro is known as a serious actor and Academy Award winner. That's a long way from his first role, human oddity Duke the Dog-Faced Boy in Big Top Pee-wee.

Lohan still has job offers

- Producer calls troubled star a 'great, great actress'
- Wants her for two projects

While the results of her upcoming felony grand theft trial are uncertain, Lindsay Lohan at least can take solace in the fact that she can still get work. Film producer Mark Fiore tells Radar Online that he's interested in the troubled actress for not one but two upcoming projects.

"I want Lindsay to be in Gotti and another movie that I'm producing," says Fiore, who serves as executive producer for Gotti: Three Generations.

"She's been very professional with me," he says. "People make mistakes. Look at so many other people in Hollywood."

Opinion

REALITY, NOT RHETORIC: CALGARIANS THINKING LOCAL

Catchwords or catchphrases often become the vernacular by which elections — federal, provincial or municipal — are defined.

We hear politicians talk of accountability, transparency, fiscal responsibility, democracy, contempt, contracts and coalitions, but what does it really mean? Yes, this is important to some — those perhaps wishing to assume power — but for most it's a game of inside political baseball few of us wish to play.

Instead, I like to think Calgarians are concerned about issues that affect the vitality of their cities and their livelihoods, and that they look past those clichés that tend to grab headlines.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi has publicly stated he'd like to see city issues play a more integral part on the election trail, but it's difficult to state your case when you can't attract the major political party leaders — let alone candidates — to your city.

This isn't because Calgary isn't a major player, but rather because it appears to most that the representation is a forgone conclusion.

This means no frank discussion about funding for public transit or Calgary infrastructure (roads, interchanges, airport tunnel) while our city continues to burst at the seams, struggling with the growth resulting from an economy that has propelled the country's fiscal fortunes for the past number of years.

We also keep a close eye on how the federal leaders campaign abroad on the oilsands and environmental stewardship. The slightest deviation in national policy reverberates throughout this province's oil and gas industry, leaving some with a sense of uneasiness over jobs and futures.

Crime and safety are always at the forefront for Calgarians; safety in our city cultivates a sense of community and pride. We want our government to strike a balance between realistic punishments for heinous crimes and addressing the root cause of violence in our communities.

And with these issues, we expect them to find a balance with the watchful eye of fiscal prudence ... cliché as it may be.

When it comes time to mark an "X" on the ballot, Calgarians will cast their vote for the federal candidate that sees civic issues as priorities equal to national ones. This is the foundation on which successful countries are built.

YOU ASKED,

► Metro readers submitted questions for the five parties ► Here's what they had to say ...

Tomorrow at 12 p.m., join us for a live chat as our crack urban affairs team responds to the parties' answers — what's working, what isn't and what's missing from the federal agenda. Speak up at metronews.ca and on Twitter using #elxn41urban."

► Stephen Harper

CONSERVATIVES

In 2009, we invested $50 million over two years ... to streamline the recognition process in a number of important occupations and made it easier for foreign-trained Canadians to use their skills and expertise in Canada. But some foreign-trained workers still have difficulty paying for ... the foreign credential recognition process. A re-elected Stephen Harper Government will provide bridge loans to help recent immigrants pay for the training and skills upgrading needed for their foreign credentials to be recognized.

1 Many immigrants to Canada are encouraged and allowed to move here based on their professional experience or credentials, only to discover once they arrive that their credentials are not recognized. What role should the federal government play in addressing this problem?

2 Other G8 countries have national transit strategies, but in Canada federal investments in public transit tend to be ad hoc, which many big-city mayors have argued leads to worse planning and less efficient spending. Does Canada need a national transit strategy, and if so, what should it look like?

In the past two years alone, we have worked with municipal and provincial partners to undertake more than 28,500 projects, many transit-related from coast-to-coast. A re-elected Stephen Harper Government will continue to support Canadian communities according to their unique needs. We introduced the transit tax credit to encourage Canadians to take public transit, reducing traffic in major city centres.

3 According to Statistics Canada, the crime rate has been declining since the early 1990s, yet concern about crime in urban areas seems to be on the rise. How do you reconcile this discrepancy?

We have passed a number of pieces of legislation to protect the vulnerable and to hold criminals accountable. We have also invested in youth gang prevention and other initiatives to encourage Canadians to stay clear of criminal activities. A re-elected Conservative government will build on our strong record by enacting legislation to end the sentence discount for child pornography and child sex offenders and toughening penalties for elder abuse.

4 According to the Federation of Canadian Municipalities, only $8 of every $100 Canadians spend on taxes goes to cities, yet cities are struggling to pay for infrastructure, policing, housing and many of the government services city residents actually interact with most on a day-to-day basis. What changes are required to ensure cities are sufficiently funded?

In 2008, Stephen Harper's Conservative government permanently doubled the gas tax fund. This major step forward for municipalities is providing a stable and predictable source of revenue for the renewal of local infrastructure. A re-elected Conservative Government will introduce legislation to confirm this permanent funding for municipal infrastructure through the gas tax fund.

5 A century ago only 20 per cent of Canadians lived in urban areas. That number has now increased to 80 per cent (or more than 25 million Canadians). What is your party's vision for the role of cities within the Canadian federation, now and into the future?

Cities are vitally important to Canada's economic success. Our government understands that. A re-elected Stephen Harper Conservative government will continue to work effectively with all levels of government to deliver historic investments in local infrastructure, including better highways, roads, bridges, water and wastewater systems, housing college and university facilities, public transit, and green energy.

THEY ANSWERED

► Michael Ignatieff

LIBERALS

The federal government must do a better job screening and advising prospective immigrants on credential recognition before they leave their countries of origin. Improving credential recognition and the integration of new Canadians into the workforce requires a renewed effort between governments, professional groups, educational institutions, sector councils and unions. We will provide leadership and make this a priority.

A Liberal government will work with other levels of government and the private sector to put in place a Canadian transportation and infrastructure strategy. Liberal infrastructure priorities will include local and regional transit, rapid transit, and commuter rail that helps reduce greenhouse gas emissions, as well as high-speed rail in regions where rapid, convenient connections between major urban centres promise environmental benefits, enhanced mobility, and decreased congestion.

Crime is always a serious problem. We need evidence-based crime policies that are tough on crime where we need tougher sentences, but also strong on crime prevention. What we don't need is to import failed crime policies from the United States. If we want to be tough on crime, we must be tough on guns. The gun registry is supported by Canada's police force as well as countless organizations in women's health and safety because it improves public safety.

We will maintain the successful gas tax transfer to municipalities and provide additional funds. A lack of affordable housing in large cities is a growing barrier to young families of modest incomes looking for their first home. We will increase the federal investment in affordable housing by $550 million, and work with cities to put in place a renewed affordable housing framework to reduce homelessness and increase the supply of affordable housing.

We view the cities as equal partners. The previous Liberal government made the most important contribution to municipal public finance in a generation through its 2005 New Deal for Cities and Communities. A new Liberal government will build on that progress. We will be a strong federal partner, working with our cities on the next generation of transit infrastructure and affordable housing.

► Jack Layton

NDP

A New Democrat government would take a leadership role to move toward a fair, efficient, transparent and accountable immigration system. In conjunction with provinces and licensing authorities, we will accelerate and streamline the recognition of foreign credentials, overseas degrees, and previous employment experience. To assist with community integration and English and French language programs, we will reinstate federal funding for the settlement programs for new Canadians.

Yes. Because Canada is the only OECD country that does not have a national public transit strategy. New Democrats tabled the National Public Transit Strategy Act, which outlines a practical plan for providing sustainable, predictable, public transit investments. New Democrats have also promised to allocate an additional cent of the existing gas tax to public transit funding for municipalities and to encourage transit use by providing a tax exemption for employee workplace-based transit passes.

To improve public safety on the streets of our communities ... New Democrats will provide stable, permanent funding to put at least 2,500 new police officers on the streets and increase federal support for crime prevention initiatives from $65 million to $100 million per year. We will give parents, teachers and police more tools to protect our children by making gang recruitment illegal and create new, standalone offences for home invasions and car-jackings.

In addition to increased funding for public transit, New Democrats will continue current federal infrastructure funding commitments and invest in community-controlled renewable energy development. In addition to restoring the affordable housing programs the Harper government allowed to expire, we will fund 100,000 new child-care spaces and provide around $1 billion a year for new affordable housing.

Canada's cities must be regarded as important resources in Canada's future economy. Jack Layton is determined to increase investment in cities, including an extra cent of the gas tax – $500 million a year – for public transit. He understands the important role these communities play in our country's overall economy and is committed to seeing there is a place at the negotiating table for cities.

► Elizabeth May

GREENS

The Green party finds fault with the current accreditation system. We would eliminate the valuation of foreign credentials for immigration purposes except in those cases where such credentials are recognized in Canada, or a clear, expeditious path to accreditation is established, and in place establish realistic criteria for immigrants based on existing job opportunities. We would also press professional societies to remove unnecessary barriers hindering the recognition of valid professional credentials.

The Green party of Canada's position is that we must adopt a national transit strategy that strengthens our rail network and public transit systems in order to have a competitive, modern economy. We are committed to providing cities with the resources to create public transit systems that reduce congestion. We are also committed to ensuring all of Canada's cities have access to rail connections, and develop high-speed corridors between frequently travelled routes.

We believe the current rise in concern over crime is directly linked with the federal government's fixation on the subject and its $9 billion spent on new prisons. Still, even with the crime rate going down, we would all like to feel safer. We are committed to further reducing crime through better programs in youth activity and early childhood education. We are committed to addressing underlying causes of crime such as poverty, racism, and inequality.

In our 2011 election platform, the Green party announced a slate of initiatives of long-term investments in municipalities and housing. That slate includes a national affordable housing program, a national solar roof program, and energy retrofits for municipal buildings, schools, universities and hospitals, growing to more than $1.6 billion annually by Year 3. An additional $2.4 billion of permanent annual funding has been allocated for six municipal superfunds beginning in the first year.

We believe that cities form a pillar of the green economy. When municipalities set out to build and repair infrastructure, retrofit and rebuild affordable housing, and modernize our aging public transit over decades, it's a decades-long commitment. Their decisions now will decide what kind of an economy we will have for the next 50 years. We hope to work with our cities to lead Canada to a sustainable future.

BLOC QUÉBÉCOIS

The evaluation and the recognition of credentials is Quebec's and the other provinces' responsibility. Quebec is, to a certain extent, autonomous in terms of immigration. Unfortunately, the actual agreement with the federal government doesn't allow us to put forward all the values that characterize Quebec. The only way Quebec will be able to deploy a more efficient and human politic is by getting a hold of the means sovereign countries can count on, like embassies and consulates.

The Bloc Québécois is in favour of discussions to be held across Canada to put in place a frame, which could allow the adoption of politics that are compatible. However, such discussions should not be used as an excuse by the federal government to interfere in Quebec's jurisdiction and, by doing so, double the politics, double the expenses and complicate the legislation.

Since it came into power, the Conservative government has ... adopted an alarmist rhetoric in regards to criminality. It is true that the fight against crime is important, but we have to remember that crime rates have been going down in Quebec and in Canada for nearly 15 years. The Bloc Québécois suggests concrete and efficient legislative measures to protect vulnerable people, particularly children and victims of human trafficking.

The Bloc Québécois proposed that the investments in infrastructures be modified to take into account the different governments' ability to pay. The federal government would pay for 50 per cent of the expenses, Quebec and the provinces would pay for 35 per cent, while the municipalities would pay for 15 per cent. That reflects the capacity to pay of everyone. The Bloc Québécois asks the federal government to regroup its programs under one unique and unconditional transfer fund.

Large cities have more and more responsibilities. We ask that the federal government participate in the fight against poverty by reinvesting in affordable and safe social housing. We also wish it would support the Quebec government in the development of infrastructures for transit systems, notably by establishing reserved lanes for common transportation and by developing new commuter train lines.

Egg History

Did you know that since ancient days, the egg has been the symbol of new life? Even before it became entwined with the Christian Easter, eggs were used by Romans, Chinese, and Egyptians in rite-of-spring festivals as a way to celebrate the dawn of a new season. NEWS CANADA

There are many ways to decorate eggs. Here's some simple ideas to kick it up a notch.

This Easter, satisfy everyone's sweet tooth

► One of these recipes is more traditional, while the other uses some innovative thinking

► This recipe makes four Apple Pocket Pies.

This Easter, think outside the pie plate and celebrate the holiday with the trendiest innovation in pie-baking in decades.

Pocket pies are tasty, colourful and easy as pie to make. These miniature homemade treats are sure to delight all ages.

Apple Pocket Pies

Preparation:

- 1 Preheat oven to 200 C (400 F). Remove pie shells from freezer and let thaw at room temperature for 10 to 15 minutes.
- 2 In a bowl, combine apples, sugar, cinnamon and flour. Set aside.
- 3 Remove pie shells from foil onto a clean, flat, lightly floured surface. If cracks appear in the pastry, press together and repair using fingers moistened with water.

- 4 Using an oval egg-shaped cookie cutter that's 7 by 10 cm (2 3/4 by 4 inches), cut out 6 egg shapes from each pie shell. Set aside any leftover dough.

- 5 Divide filling mixture evenly among 6 cutouts, mounding in centre and leaving a 5-mm (1/4-inch) border. Top with remaining cutouts. Gently press edges together

- 30 ml (2 tbsp) brown sugar
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) ground cinnamon
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) all-purpose flour
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) milk

and crimp with a fork.

- 6 Brush tops lightly with milk and bake for 12 to 15 minutes or until pastry is golden.

Decorating tips: Use any leftover dough to cut shapes to decorate top. Brush with milk or egg wash to affix to pie and bake as directed above. Decorate pies with multi-coloured sprinkles by brushing top with milk or egg wash, adding sprinkles and bake.

Chocolate Bunnies are a staple Easter treat. These ones are perfect for kid participation. Let your little ones measure ingredients, use cookie cutters to shape the treats, and decorate.

Preparation:

- 1 In saucepan melt chocolate morsels and butter over low heat. Add marshmallows and stir until melted. Remove from heat. Add cereal and stir until coated.
- 2 Using buttered spatula evenly press mixture into 15 x 10 x 1-inch (38 x 25 x 2.5 cm) baking sheet

Ingredients:

- 1 cup (250mL) semi-sweet chocolate morsels
- 3 tbsp (45mL) butter or margarine
- 1 pkg (10 oz) marshmallows, about 40 or 4 cups (1 L) miniature marshmallows
- 6 cups (1.5 L) rice crisp cereal

Europe in North America

► If you can't afford to head across the Atlantic, visiting Quebec City is a good alternative ► Find charm and history in one of North America's oldest cities ► There are plenty of great B&Bs and fine dining options

STEPHANIE GRAY
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA

If the thought of jumping the pond to Europe sounds exciting, yet the price slighting overwhelming, then consider packing your bags and heading to the capital of Quebec. Over 400-years-old and the only walled-in city remaining in North America, Quebec City exudes a character and romance reminiscent of Europe. Find out just how easy it is to have an affordable getaway with a French flair.

Historical Sites

As one of the oldest cities in North America, this destination is brimming with historic landmarks, the most notable being Old Quebec, a designated UNESCO world heritage site. Other treasures include the Parliament Building, architecturally inspired by the Louvre, the historic urban park of the Plains of Abraham and the fortifications that surround the old city. Plus you'll keep your budget in check, as many of the historic sites are free of charge.

Divine Dining

Follow the lead of the French and dine at a restaurant that focuses on fresh, local ingredients. For a memorable meal try Le Patriarche in Old Quebec with dishes inspired by the province including their signature wild game trilogy and desserts created by their in-house pastry chef. It's a true French dining experience worth the splurge.

Sweet Sleeps

From quaint B&B's to the iconic Château Frontenac, it's easy to find accommodations with old-world charm. Perched on a cape overlooking the St. Lawrence River, the Fairmont Le Château Frontenac is a 618-room luxury hotel in Old Quebec offering award-winning cuisine and a full-service spa and health club. 6 ways to reduce the chances of losing your luggage

- Before your bag disappears behind the ticket counter, make sure the airline's tag has your name, flight number and final destination.
- Place a copy of your flight itinerary inside your suitcase with your cellphone number and the name of your hotel in case the tag is ripped off or goes missing.
- If you can't live without it, don't check it. It might take days to return a lost bag. Don't pack medication or outfits for tomorrow's meeting or wedding. Never check valuables such as jewelry or electronics.

- Make your bag stand out. A bright colour or print — or something tied to the handle — prevents somebody from accidentally taking it at baggage claim.

- Prepare your carry-on bag as if it will be checked. You might not have planned to check your bag, but given today's crowded overhead bins many flyers don't have a choice.

- If your bag doesn't arrive, file a claim before you leave the airport. If on a cruise, give your itinerary to the airline so your luggage can be forwarded to the next port.

What does the big cheese need?

► All bosses are definitely not created equal, but thank goodness there some things they all want in a worker

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONews.CA.O

Understanding what makes your corporate overlord tick is a near-impossible pursuit in an Internet era, when office politics are conducted via gChat and your boss more often lurks on the other side of a screen than the other side of a desk.

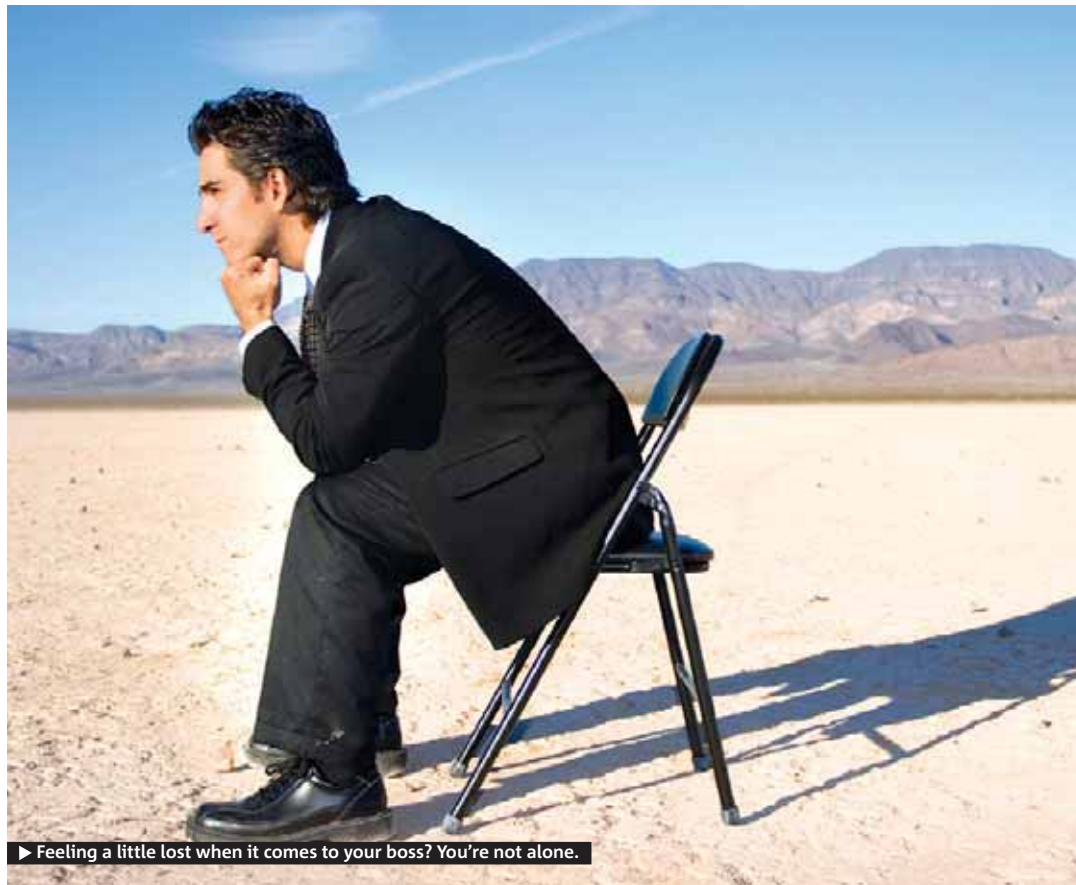

But if you're struggling to make good with the new somebody you've got to serve, we've got career counsellors to help us understand four things all bosses want.

A Sense of Priorities

"A common mistake that entry-level workers make is that they're focused on their work and see that as their priority," New York-based Executive Coach Barbara Frankel notes. "What they don't understand is that their first priority is their boss's priority."

Figuring out what the bigwig upstairs cares about might necessitate asking around, says Donna Flag, a career coach. Don't be hesitant to raise the question early on.

"I recommend that

► Feeling a little lost when it comes to your boss? You're not alone.

people, even in the interviewing process, ask, 'What are you looking for? What matters to you?'" she suggests.

Open Ears

"In the beginning, you want to listen more than you talk," says Lindsay Pollack, a Generation Y Career Blog writer.

Many fresh hires, she adds, come in thinking the opposite.

"Most people think they have to walk in and deliver results immediately," Frankel agrees. "The right way to approach a job is to listen and learn."

If you have observations, she says, jot them down. Six months from now they might be worth considering.

Interested in We, Not I

Newbies who come in trying to prove themselves often undermine themselves by boasting of their past accomplishments.

Bragging is a great way, to spoil your reputation from day one, says Jane Cranston career counsellor.

"At a business meeting you should say, 'Am I talking about me? Or am I talking about business,'" she cautions. "Because this isn't about you."

Subtle Respect

"All bosses think that because they're a boss, they deserve respect," Flag warns. "Be sensitive to that. Convey a sense of respect."

Got a case of stress?

► Getting closer and closer to the breaking point? ► Take a step back

If you keep slogging harder days and longer hours, career counsellors warn you will discover a source of inner energy you never knew you had: your snapping point.

Strange things happen to good people when they reach that limit: Cool heads detonate, steel nerves melt, grown adults mature backward through time. Unless you want to find out what thermonuclear breakdowns you are capable of staging, get a handle on your workload before you fly off it.

"One of the basic feelings behind being overworked is a lack of control, like you're no longer in the driver's seat," says Christiane Turnheim, a career guru and psychology professor. "When you feel that way, try to get back in control of your work. See if some of it." A roomier deadline, she notes, can ease you back toward sanity. So can a roomier workplace – like a public library or a street-side bistro.

► Remember: Chances are, you won't even remember this crazy day five years from now.

"Changing your job location can really work," Barbara Glanz, author of Care Packages for the Workplace, says.

If you can't change your workplace – change something about the one you're in.

"Put a picture on your desk of whoever the person is whose life is going to be better because of the work you do," Glanz offers. "Do that to remind you that you're doing this for a bigger purpose."

Every engine needs a rest, she adds. Don't be afraid to idle yours.

"Take a five minute vacation," she recommends. "Go to the washroom and go the Bahamas for five minutes."

"You can do anything you want in your head," she continues.

Treat Yourself

"When your energy is low, go buy yourself a treat," Glanz encourages. "Have fun with it. Send yourself some flowers."

A catastrophic day is likely to fade into tomorrow's distant memory if your after work agenda includes "a healthy diet, lots of sleep, and exercise," Turnheim advises.

"Have a balance in life," she says. "Eat a lot of fruit." —DREW HINSHAW

WAIT, DID I JUST RESIGN?

When Jantsje Beggs' mobile home was destroyed by a fire, she did not think this would also cost her her job. Beggs had not been formally terminated, and she assumed she had not resigned either. Her employer assumed otherwise.

Beggs, a grocery store clerk for Westport Foods in Vancouver Island, called her boss the day after the fire explaining that she could not come in as scheduled and did not know when she would return.

Beggs' phone was disconnected, and when her manager could not contact her for almost a month, a record of employment was prepared claiming that Beggs resigned. When Beggs later came by the store to retrieve it and to drop off a doctor's note explaining her absence, she was shocked to learn that Westport viewed her as having resigned.

Instead of speaking with her employer, Beggs hired a lawyer who accused Westport of firing her in an insensitive manner, referring to the medical evidence that the company had not yet been aware of. In response, Westport maintained that Beggs had resigned.

The British Columbia Court of Appeal recently sided with Beggs. It found that before the lawyers were involved, there was a genuine misunderstanding on Westport's part of Beggs' intentions and the reasons for her absence from work. However, when Westport's lawyer maintained that Beggs had quit her job, despite seeing medical evidence showing that she was ill, Westport effectively fired her, ruled the court, even though it had not intended to.

Seldom do sincerity and intentions sway judicial favour in a lawsuit. Often the courts focus on what did, or did not, occur. Here, Beggs found herself in the "twilight zone" somewhere between having abandoned her job and having been fired. Although she won her case, by following these simple steps, the confusion could have been avoided:

- Immediately protest a characterization that there has been a resignation, if you didn't intend to resign.
- Resist taking any steps that can be construed as voluntarily withdrawing from the workplace, as difficult as that may be.

Keeping students interested

► Research shows that a non-interactive classroom environment can be especially hard on young learners

Students' interest and desire to participate actively in the learning process is central to their success at any level of education.

All students are motivated by some activities; in schools, student motivation is deeply affected by what happens in classrooms.

Research drawn from several fields suggests ways we can improve students' engagement and motivation.

- Relevance – Building on students' interests and making the lessons relevant to students' lives and what they already know are good practices.

- Choice – Giving students more choices in their learning, both about what to study and about how to present what they know and can do, makes learning more interesting and heightens curiosity.

- Recognizing Effort – Success is a big spur to further effort. Students' motivation increases when their efforts and contributions are consistently valued.

More info

► For more information on the research references that inform this issue, visit cea-ace.ca/facts-on-education.

► A sincere desire to engage in learning is key to retaining information for kids.

- Feedback – Timely and specific feedback tells students what their strengths and weaknesses are. Feedback must be given so that students understand what they need to do in order to improve. Multiple opportunities to demonstrate learning are also important.

- Teaching Methods and Tools – Students learn best through a variety of teaching techniques and strategies that challenge them and encourage them to explore ideas. The use of technology, such as computers, and SMART Boards, can also help to motivate students.

Parents are valuable partners in the learning process. They can support their child's learning by suggesting strategies to teachers that they have observed to be successful at home. This will help teachers meet the child's learning needs.

Teachers and parents support their children's learning when they praise effort and hard work rather than intelligence.

There is growing evidence that children's intelligence is not fixed, and the children who do best are those who develop "growth mindsets" so that they are prepared to put in the effort to succeed.

Celtics hold on to beat Knicks

Kevin Garnett sank the go-ahead basket with 14 seconds left, then stole the ball as the Boston Celtics overcame Carmelo Anthony's 42 points and beat the depleted New York Knicks 96-93 to take a 2-0 lead in their playoff series on last night.

The Knicks played the entire second half without Amare Stoudemire, who had back spasms. Chauncey Billups missed the game with a sore left knee.

Garnett hit the decisive jump hook after backing Jared Jeffries into the lane. The Knicks then got the ball to Anthony in the left corner, where he was double-teamed by Paul Pierce and Glen Davis. Anthony passed inside to Jeffries, but Garnett stole the ball and called timeout with four seconds remaining.

The Knicks then fouled Delonte West, who made two free throws with 0.6 seconds to go.

Rajon Rondo led the Celtics with a career play-off-high 30 points.

Engine

While the Aveo's standard 108-horsepower four-cylinder engine typifies those found in this class, the Sonic roars to life with a 135-horsepower 1.8-litre four-cylinder, or optional 138-horsepower turbocharged 1.4-litre four-cylinder. Since both powerplants also see service in the larger and heavier Chevrolet Cruze sedan, you can expect the little Sonic to be a lively performer along with delivering respectable fuel economy.

Interior

Impressive design characteristics are featured in the Sonic's interior, where the dashboard and control panel exude an up-level quality rarely seen in the econo-car class.

An analog tachometer dominates the driver's field of vision, flanked by a rectangular screen displaying a digital speedometer, odometer and fuel gauge. Up-level models will offer two-tone dash and door-panel trim.

Body styling

There's obviously a lot more North American flavour built into the Sonic's design that now features a stubbier-looking nose with a more prominent grille and fancier headlight pods.

In back, the sedan appears somewhat similar to the outgoing Aveo sedan, while the stylish hatchback does a good job at hiding the rear door latches adjacent to the roof pillar. Also, the Sonic features fancy taillamps that were apparently inspired by motorcycle headlights.

► From stem to stern, the Sonic is aggressively styled with beady eyeballs, embossed front-fender arches and a plunging beltline. However, the design cues are not that much different than other cars in the class such as the Mazda2 or the Ford Fiesta.

Chevy hoping for Sonic boom

You might have noticed the sudden flurry of small-car launches announced by many of the world's automakers.

You might have also noticed the steadily rising pump prices attributed to a certain oil-producing nation's strife.

This volatility is bad news for drivers of big, thirsty vehicles, but it's the perfect storm for General Motors, which will this fall launch the all-new Sonic series of sub-compacts.

The Sonic replaces the Korea-built Aveo that has served as the automaker's entry model since the 2004 model year. Like the Aveo, the Sonic will be offered in both sedan and mini-wagon formats. However, unlike the Aveo, the Sonic will be constructed at GM's Orion, Mich. plant that was recently refitted to the tune of more than $500 million.

The Sonic's late-2011 arrival bolsters Chevy's focus on the svelte end of the passenger-car scale. Prices will likely begin at about $14,500 (including delivery charges), possibly slightly more for the hatchback version.

That should make for a super-Sonic buy in a class where automakers appear to be spending a lot more care and attention to detail than they were when gas was cheap and bigger was better. That's good news for buyers who are tired of fuel-price volatility and, up to now, had no real options.

► A look at the Sonic sedan.

► The Sonic looks the part of a mid-level sedan rather than an entry-level small car.

9 Both Sonic body styles are larger than their outgoing Aveo counterparts by nearly nine centimetres in overall length and more than 7.5 centimetres between the front and rear wheels. In the sub-compact class, these increases are significant and point to added front and rear passenger space.

What you should know about the 2012 Chevrolet Sonic:

- Types: Four-door sub-compact sedan/hatchback.
- Engine (hp): 1.8-litre DOHC I4 (135); 1.4-litre DOHC I4, turbocharged (138).
- Transmission: Five-speed manual (1.8); six-speed automatic (opt., 1.8); Six-speed manual (1.4 turbo).
- Stats: L/100 km (city/hwy) 7.6/5.3 (1.8, MT, est.).

RETRO ELECTRO IS HOT ROD FIRST, ELECTRIC CAR SECOND

Auto Pilot

MIKE GOETZ

DRIVE@METRONews.ca

How do you maintain a cool, retro vibe with your vehicle fleet, when you're also trying to maintain a green vibe? Well, if you're the Steam Whistle Brewery, you create the Retro Electro — an all-electric 1958 Chevrolet Apache ½ ton pickup.

Retro Electro and the man behind it, Mike Kiraly, are usually tooling around the streets of Vancouver, checking in on Steam Whistle clients, but were in Toronto recently, to participate in last week-end's Green Living Show.

Kiraly let yours truly have a brief fling behind the wheel, which provoked a conflicted response. I didn't know whether to put my elbows out the window and light up a cigarette, or keep the windows up to conserve some electrical energy and compost the smoke.

Thankfully I don't smoke, so got over it quick, and just enjoyed the experience.

Not hard when you have 465 lb-ft of torque at your disposal. This is not an effete electric car, in the golf cart mode. It is a hot rod first, and an electric vehicle second. The Retro Electro launches like you would expect of something with that much grunt — aided by the absolutely linear torque curve of electric motors. And it does its thing in low volume — you only hear road noise and some gear whine.

And this is the "milder"

► Electric power doesn't mean it's not a hot rod. Witness Steam Whistle's Retro Electro, which started life as 1958 Chevrolet Apache 1/2 ton pickup.

► Configuring a lithium ion battery pack is not for the faint of heart. Good thing Steam Whistle's Mike Kiraly is also a university professor.

version of Retro Electro. An earlier version, with lower gearing, was capable of smoking its tires in dragster-like fashion.

Said motor is an Azure

Dynamics AC90 electric motor, which is often retrofitted in larger panel trucks. It gets its juice from a very sophisticated lithium ion battery pack. It can be fully charged in eight hours on a 220V service, good for a range of about 150 kilometres.

To complete the green loop, Steam Whistle makes sure Retro Electro is always charged on renewable electricity from Bullfrog Power. In fact, the entire brewery only uses electricity from Bullfrog. Steam Whistle's other green initiatives include thicker beer bottles, which can be re-used more often, and running its delivery trucks with B20 bio fuel.

The electric drivetrain makes the vehicle about 500 pounds heavier than stock, and the batteries take up some cargo capacity, so it has lost some of its trucky usefulness, but is more than capable of fulfilling its mandate as a Steam Whistle work truck.

Just to make sure, I turn to Kiraly, who is riding shotgun, and ask him again, "You drive this every day, as part of your job?"

"Yeah," says Kiraly. "Pretty lucky guy, eh?"

Kiraly is also a guy with several facets to his personality. He spends half his workday as Steam Whistle's manager in B.C., and the other half as university professor teaching anatomy and physiology. He has several degrees, including a PhD in Endocrinology.

Now he's learned quite a lot putting this vehicle together for Steam Whistle. His teachers were an A-list of Vancouver-based experts, including Greg Murray of Electric Autosports and Trevor Stoker of Azure Dynamics.

He's ready to build another electric hot-rod. Judging by Retro Electro, he may be on to something.

The next-generation of alcohol detection

DRIVING FORCE

JILL McINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONews.ca

Few things are more deadly than drunk driving, but it's very difficult to prevent people from getting behind the wheel if they're not willing to police themselves.

One possible solution is DADSS (Driver Alcohol Detection System for Safety), a cooperative research project by the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and ACTS, the Automotive Coalition for Traffic Safety.

The DADSS program is intended to research, develop and demonstrate non-invasive methods that quickly measure the driver's BAC, or blood alcohol concentration, each time the driver gets in. If the BAC is too high, the car won't start.

Unlike an ignition interlock, which requires the driver to blow into a breathalyzer and is often mandated by the courts for convicted drunk drivers, the DADSS system must work invisibly. Currently, researchers are looking at tissue spectrometry, which would estimate alcohol via the driver's skin when the vehicle's starter button is pushed, and at distant spectrometry, which would measure exhaled breath.

"There are tremendous challenges and most have to do with how complex a vehicle is itself," says Wade

Newton, director of communications for the Alliance of Automobile Manufacturers, which works with ACTS.

"It's 3,000 parts working together in all temperature conditions, whether filled with passengers or empty, or maybe not maintained. The device and technology must work all the time."

Such technology, should it become feasible, could potentially be added to all new vehicles. For that reason, it must be invisible to the operator, Newton says. "It can't inconvenience the sober driver," he says. "We need to be confident that it's not going to prevent a sober driver from operating the vehicle. A huge percentage doesn't drink, but they're affected by drunk drivers."

The research teams have a lot of work ahead.

The device must prevent the car from being started at precisely the legal limit of .08 BAC, "and they could be .0799 when they start and a few minutes later they cross over, and how do you handle that?" Newton says.

"That's one of the as-yet unanswered questions."

The breath-based system must be able to pinpoint the driver and not an intoxicated passenger.

"Successful technology will be able to tell where the breath is, how warm it is, where it's coming from. It wouldn't just be ambient in the vehicle," Newton says.

Overcoming such complexity takes time, and researchers are hoping to demonstrate the technology in a research vehicle by 2013.

Building the heart of Godzilla

► The powerful V6 engine from the Nissan GT-R is assembled by the hands of elite, experienced workers trusted to build a powerful and reliable product

STEVEN REIVE
WHEELBASE MEDIA
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Automotive enthusiasts agree that the Nissan GT-R, affectionately known as Godzilla, is one of the world's great supercars.

But did you know that the heart of Godzilla — and the reputation of a supercar — comes down to just one person?

Here at Nissan's giant Oppama plant, in a special room expressly built for this purpose, each one of the most technologically advanced and powerful engines ever offered by Nissan is assembled by a single technician.

Located about 50 kilometres southeast of Tokyo, this is not a glitzy high-tech facility, but a 5.6-million square-foot working plant that has produced more than 15 million vehicles since it opened nearly 50 years ago as Japan's first full-scale passenger vehicle.

Steadily upgraded over the years, it is now one of the most automated in the world.

The massive complex is adjacent to the wharf from which Nissan ships vehicles made in all three of its Japanese plants around the world. It is also the home of a large proving ground and Nissan's Global Training and Research Centers, all of which play a role in the GT-R program. A number of engines are built here, but a specific area has been allocated for the VR38DETT as the GT-R engine is known within these four walls.

As the company's performance and technology flagship, the GT-R carries significant importance and demands the most highly-trained and experienced workers to build its engine.

Those selected for this honour, instantly move to the top of the hierarchy among the 4,500 people working here. By tapping into a worker pool rich with seasoned and skilled technicians who have spent years in engine assembly, Nissan is able to select individuals with the necessary skills and a strong sense of pride.

The all-new all-alloy engine was designed especially for the GT-R. It is a technological tour-de-force employing a variety of lessons learned in racing programs. That includes a special cylinder-wall coating to promote piston-ring sealing and reduce wear under the extreme pressures endured by this turbocharged monster.

Up to 26 of these potent 530-horsepower engines are produced here in a day, every one of the twin-turbocharged 3.8-litre V6s assembled by a single technician from start to finish.

Prep your bike for springtime

► Before you hit the highway, get your motorcycle ready for the road ► Follow these tips for a safe season

As our days slowly warm up, motorcycle owners are getting their wheels out of hibernation.

But before revving the engine, it's important that bikers take some time to get their motorcycles ready for the new season.

Preparing your bike is not only important from a maintenance perspective, but also to make sure that riding doesn't get too rough on the wallet.

"By asking the right questions and carefully bringing your bike out of storage, motorcycle owners will have a much greater chance of a safe and trouble-free 2011 motorcycle season," said Mauro Convertini, an insurance expert from Aviva Canada.

Before you head out onto the highway, here are a couple of preparations that Convertini suggests you take:

Test your equipment

Reinstall the battery and examine all fluid levels. Check for cracked tires, broken parts or leaking oil. Set the tire pressures back to riding specs.

Take it slow

Your skills will be rusty and road surfaces will be different than your last ride. Sand and salt deposits on the edge and corners of the roads may be hazardous.

Install an anti-theft device

There are a range of anti-theft devices designed for motorcycles and some insurance companies will offer you a discount if you install an approved one.

Check your insurance

Follow up with your insurance broker to ensure you have comprehensive coverage. Ask about discounts for bikers with safe driving records.

An Alluring luxury on a budget

► Buick Allure offered comfortable ride, relatively good reliability

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Buick's volume-selling luxury model was called the Allure in Canada when it replaced the Regal and Century for the 2005 model year.

Elsewhere it was known as the LaCrosse — a word which many French Canadians know as an unfavourable slang with various meanings.

Whatever it was called, the Allure offered up value-priced luxury in typical Buick fashion. This was no Mercedes or BMW, but for not a whole lot of money, the Allure offered drivers plenty of space, comfort and relaxation.

Look for this sedan with several engine options and trim levels to match a variety of needs. CX and CXL were low and mid-range models, respectively, and powered by GM's staple 3.8-litre V6 engine. Top-line CXS models got a newer 3.6-litre, 240-horsepower mill. This was capped for 2008, and a 5.3-litre, 300-horsepower V8 became available on the high-performance Allure Super.

Four speed automatics and front-wheel drive were standard on all models.

What Owners Like

Typically, Allure owners say decent levels of performance, relatively good fuel economy, comfort and styling drew them in for a test-drive, while a decent price and overall value helped seal the deal.

Other owners note a safe and sturdy feel to the Allure's highway drive.

What Owners Hate

Some owners wish for a softer suspension, noting that the Allure doesn't "ride on a cloud" and transmits a fair bit of road feel back into the car. Ditto for road noise. Other owners complain of tight rear-seat quarters, and wish for the enhanced performance and fuel economy that could have been provided by a six-speed automatic.

Common Issues

Hitting the road for a test-drive? Certain Allure models were affected by an issue with the intermediate shaft — a part related to the steering system. Buick mechanics should be familiar with the issue if the model you're driving "pulls" to either side or makes any unwelcome clunking or popping noises. A full check of the front end and brakes for premature part wear is also advised.

Have the model checked for coolant leaks, too. Some owners have reported a mysterious coolant leak on their Allures, which could be caused by bad engine gaskets or hoses used by the cooling system.

Double check for proper operation of the remote locks and start, if so equipped.

Finally, be sure to inspect the paint for signs of premature wear or peeling clearcoat, and note any excessive squeaking or rattling in the interior.

The Verdict

For luxury on a budget, the Allure seems to have delivered — just mind the front end and be weary of coolant leaks.
